Bright Green Eggs! Adelaide Zoo's Cassowaries Surprise Keepers

The zoo's first cassowary eggs in 34 years are neon green

Zookeepers in South Australia have big news. Two southern cassowaries at Adelaide Zoo laid eggs with bright neon green shells, the zoo's first cassowary eggs in 34 years.

The mom is Martina, and the dad is Jeffrey. He will sit on the eggs and care for any chicks. The green color hides eggs in rainforest leaves. Healthy chicks hatch in about 50 days.

Treats, Strolls and Pumpkin Rolls Around Metro Detroit

Halloween week is packed with fun near Birmingham. Downtown Berkley and Farmington hold trick-or-treat strolls Saturday. Bowers Farm in Bloomfield Hills has a fall festival Oct. 30, and the Robot Garage in Birmingham hosts Kids Night Out.
