The World's Tallest Day of the Dead Skeleton Rises in Mexico City

A 109-foot La Catrina made from about 70,000 marigolds sets a new height record

In Mexico City, a giant La Catrina, the elegant skeleton lady of Day of the Dead, has been named the tallest of her kind. She stands 109 feet high, taller than a ten-story building.

Her builders covered her with about 70,000 marigolds, the orange flowers families use to decorate and remember loved ones at this joyful holiday of flowers, food and music.

WORD OF THE DAY

towering

adjective

very tall, rising high above things around it

"The towering skeleton was taller than the buildings nearby."

Daily Joke

Why did the skeleton stay out of the snowball fight? He had no body to throw it with! (Ba-dum-chh!)

Daily Sudoku
