On October 14, 1947, test pilot Chuck Yeager flew the Bell X-1 rocket plane faster than the speed of sound, becoming the first person ever to do it.

Five Cheetah Cubs Are Growing Up on Camera

A first-time mom named Zura is raising a litter born October 5 at a Smithsonian center, and you can watch live

Five tiny cheetah cubs were born on October 5 at the Smithsonian's Conservation Biology Institute in Front Royal, Virginia. Their mother, Zura, is five years old and this is her first litter. Zura was born at the same institute in 2021.

A camera inside the den lets anyone around the world watch the Cheetah Cub Cam online. Cubs gain about 50 grams a day, and their eyes usually open within four to seven days. At six weeks they get their first checkup and vaccines.

Cheetahs are the fastest land animals, reaching 60 to 70 miles per hour and covering about 23 feet in one stride. But they are listed as vulnerable, and their numbers have dropped by more than 90 percent since 1900. The institute has now welcomed 90 cheetah cubs in 21 litters.

Tech Corner: Is AI Making Us Dumber?

Scientists say it depends on how you use it. When AI does all the work, your own skills can fade: doctors who relied on AI to spot growths missed more on their own later, and high schoolers who leaned on AI for math did worse without it. But AI that gave hints instead of answers helped students learn as well as studying with books. The motto: use it or lose it.
